Joshua Bourassa is a research associate at the Simpson centre and is part of the centre's Carbon program. His current research focus on Canadian climate change policy and its effects on Alberta's ag sector. Josh graduated from the University of Manitoba in 2017 with a B.Sc. in agribusiness and is now pursuing M.Sc. in Agricultural Economics, also from the U of M.